LAW REPORT

Before Justice, Silberg, Beriason and Witkon Dov Pick, Appellant, v. the Attorney General Respondent Prostitute Not Accomplice of Brothel-Keeper

Attorney General, Responsession of Brothel-Keeper
The Supreme Court dismissed an appeal against a verdict of the Haifa District Court, delivered on June 3, 1965.

The appellant. Dov Pick, was charged in 1963 with keeping a brokel in the Emek Hotel, Haifa Three women gave statements to the police to the effect that they pursued their profession of proceitution in the accused is hotel and gave him a percentage of their carnings. At the hearing in the District Court, however, two of the witnesse changed their tune, denying the truth of their satements to the police which, they claimed, had been extracted under pressure. The third witness stuck to her stop of the court, in addition, that the accused had unsuccessfully attempted to suborn her into committing perjury. Pick was subsequently charged with subormation of perjury in that he had procured the first two witnesses to commit perjury in the District Court, and with attempted to precure the third witness to commit perjury in the District Court, and with attempted to precure the third witness to commit perjury. At the perjury trial, the two women admitted that Pick had persuaded them to lie in the District Court, after taking the more of the dubious character of the witnesses commit perjury, and send of the confession of the provides was satisfied beyond any doubt that they had told the truth. Relying on their evidence he found that Pick had kept a brothel and had been guilty of subornation of perjury, and of attempted subornation of perjury, and sentenced him to a total of two years' imprisonment.

Mr. A. Levitsky appeared for the appelant, Dr. A. El-tiss, Deputy State Attorney, for the respondent.

Judgment

Justice Berinson, in delivering the judgment of the Supreme Court, said that the District Court had to consider two questions: Firstly,
whether the self-confessed
prostitutes were accessories to the offence of keeping a brothel—in which case their evidence would require corroboration and secondly, whether a person can be found guilty of subornation
of perjury on the strength of the evidence of one witness only and that the suborned person herself.

In dealing with the first problem, Justice Berinson dismissed Mr. Levitaky's contention that the District Court should not have found that his client had kept a brothel on the strength of a prostitute's evidence only (as held in Cr. 455/41 ALR

problem before the courthat of corroborative evidence in cases of perjury—Justice Berinson said that English statutory law did not allow a person to be convicted of perjury or subornation of perjury on the strength of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of one witness as to the falsity of the evidence of the offence of perjury on the strength of the evidence of one witness and, in the procure are not common law the Justice continued, he had, after examining all the well-known authorities, not found that the statutory provision had been promulgated merely to give a legislative stamp to a common law rule. On the other hand, in the American legislature, it had been held that a person procured to give false evidence and the procurer are not accomplices and, in the absence of any specific statutory provision, the evidence of the former does not require corroboration, neither as regards the actual subornation, nor with regard to the falsity of the evidence given.

For these reasons, and the additional one that even the additional one that evidence given.

For these reasons, and the additional one that even the English law does not require corroboration as to the actual act of subornation, Justice Berinson held that our courts were justified in accepting the rule that corroborative evidence is not required with regard to the falsity of the evidence given, and certainly not with regard to the set of subornation.

faility of the evidence given, and certainly not with regard to the act of subornation.

In applying this rule to the case under consideration, Justice Berinson held that the appellant could rightly have been found gullty of subornation of perjury on the strength of the evidence of the prostitutes only; but, in actual fact, there had been corroborative evidence as to the falsity of the first two witnesses' evidence, namely that of the third witness who had not succumbed to the appellant's persuasiveness, and that of a pimp who had used the appellant's persuasiveness, and that of a pimp who had used the appellant's persuasiveness, shotel for prostitution. As to the attempted subornation of perjury, it was clear that the appellant could have been convicted on the strength of the evidence of the third witness who had certainly not been an accomplice and whom Judge Zohar had believed implicitly.

In considering the question of severity of the punishment, Justice Berinson held that the offence of subornation of perjury was even more serious than that of perjury and, in the circumstances, the sentence was not excessive.

Appeal dismissed and the sentence of two years' imprisonment confirmed.

eral hundred was established yesterday by the Minister of Interior, Mr. Israel Bar-Yehuda. Tamar lies west of the Dead Sea and includes such settlements as Sdom, Ein Geddi and Dimona. It will have a nine-man council headed by Mr. Yehuda Almog formerly of Kiar Giladi, whose pioneering work in the area dates back to 1935. Although the least densely populated Regional Council, Tamar is not the smallest in population. This homour goes to Ono, near Tel Aviv, which has 340 inhabitants. Abu Ghosh Gets Nursing Centre

Jerusalem Post Reporter

A mother-and-child health station, built by the Arab villagers of Abu Ghosh from a tumhle-down stone ruin,
was officially opened at the village yesterday.

The clinic, an arch-windowed room painted in placid blue, is the twenty-sixth to be equipped and staffed by the Hadassah Medical Organization in Jerusalem
and the Corridor.

On hand to greet a large delegation of Hadassah women from the U.S. was Mrs. Sarah Gutkin, a 23-year-old nurse, who has been running the station single-handed since November. She was joined two weeks ago by Dr. Eva Landsburg Levine, a pediatrician.

Abu Ghosh had been without resident medical care for two years, since a Government health station closed down.

Coffee on the Terrace

Visitors later adjourned to a large terrace overlooking the lush-green hill village where they partook of fruit and cakes and sipped Turkish coffee at the invitation of the Mukhtar.

The nephew of the Mukhtar, who welcomed the guests in Arabic, Hebrew and English, thanked Hadasash for its constant "non-discriminatory" service to Abu Ghosh residents in the Jerusalem hospital and clinics.

Dr. K. J. Mann. Director General of the H.M.O. reminded the visitors that the clinic was on the site of Givat Yearim of Biblical times, where the Ark of the Covenant was kept for 20 years before being taken to Jerusalem.

Mrs. Rebecca Shulman, President of Hadasash, expressed the hope that the generosity of spirit between Jewish and Arab citizens of Israel would extend beyond the borders.
